STAR-STUDDED LINE-UP SET FOR TUESDAY

By Nicole Watts

Serena Williams and Kim Clijsters are among the players in action today as the top seeds at Rogers Cup presented by National Bank start to take to the courts.

Both former No.1s will be playing in the evening session, with Williams coming out first against Alona Bondarenko and Clijsters following opposite Zheng Jie.

Williams, who gave away computers to kids from the San Romanoway Revitalization Association in the Jane/Finch Community on Friday, will be looking for a positive result as she continues her comeback from injury and illness. The 13-time Grand Slam winner is coming off a title at Stanford in just her third tournament back, and should be in fine fighting form tonight.

No. 2 Clijsters will be playing Zheng, who breezed through her first-round match yesterday 6-2, 6-1. Toronto is the likable Belgian's first event since June, so it will be interesting to see how she looks in match play. She has appeared strong on the practice courts though, and when she is in top form, the four-time Slam champion is nearly impossible to beat.
